The Little Playhouse

by

Bes Kurtz

Bes Kurtz

I used to be filled with children
With their dolls & dishes & all,
But now I stand here lonely
For they have grown too big & tall.
The cobwebs are thickly gathering
Through winters & summers & fall,
But my corners are filled with memories
Of those grown-ups once so small.